Manager Mutrie has 23 Places Now in The Ball Fever in Danbury-Fine Work by the Bowling Men-Other Sports

The question as to where the New York Club will have its new home is just as far from being settled now as it has been at any time. Manager Mutrie said yesterday that twenty-three different places had been offered to him. and that he was looking them over. One party had offered to build for him the best ground in the world, if he would accept it. Mr. Mutrie also received a long letter from Erastus Wiman. and also one from the New York Central Bail road. It would not be a bad scheme to locate the grounds somewhere on the line of that road outside of the city, and have the trains run direct to the grounds from the Fortysecond street station. Mr. Mutrie has also had a long talk with the owner of the Lynch estate, and that property can either be bought estate, and that property can either be bought or leased at any time. The Astor estate, on the line of the Second avenue elevated railroad, is also considered a favorable site for the grounds. Manager Mutrie is also considering the question of lessing grounds at Casenova station, 158th street, east of the Southern Boulevard. The location offered has many advantages, spacious grounds, and a large mansion fitted up with improvements, billiard room, and bowling alley, such as the club would require. It can be reached both weten board and railroad. The property formerly belonged to the Cheesebrough estate.

Circusnatt. Feb. 12.—George Nuiton, who played third base for the Chicago Maroons last season, carries one hand in flannels to-day. Last night he had the most exciting experience of his life, and his presence of mind aided him in saving his wife from a horrible death. Just as they were ready to retire Mrs. Nuiton, who was gowned, stood before the grate, and as she turned her garment swept into the fire. In an instant it was ablaze, A cry of agony and alarm startled Nuiton, and without an instant't was roblaze, a cry of agony and alarm startled Nuiton, and without an instant's hesitation he tore the flaming night robe from the shoulders of his frightened better half, burning his own hands and arms as he did so. She suffered slight injuries, her limbs being blistered and her half singed as the bluzing gown was drawn over her head.

log gown was drawn over her head.

Louisville. Feb. 12.—It can be said without fear of contridiction that Weaver. Louisville's centre fielder, keeps himself in better condition than any other man in the Louisville Club. He has just given up his position at the Rentucky Wagon Works, and is getting himself in proper trim for the opening of the season. He said yesterday: "I think the Louisville Club will do better work than most people think us capable of. I have seen Raymond use the stick, and I know just exactly what there is in him, and I venture the opinion that he will make a big improvement in his work at the bat this season." Tomney is working in a foundry at Reading. Pa. He will remove his family to this city in the spring. Lave Cross, the clever little back stop of last season's Louisville Club, seriously injured his right arm some time ago while out hunting near Cleveland. He has nearly recovered, however, and the injury will not interfere with his work.

DANNURY, Feb. 11.—The average Dauburian is about as strong a base ball sharp as can be found in New England nowadays, and lie is witnessing the efforts of New Haven and Hart-witnessing the efforts of New Haven and Hartford in ferming associations to put teams in the Atlantic League with a good deal of awe. To use an expression of Balley, the Danbury Yers sin, who is himself a ball crank, "it is like sifting on a barb-wire fence and looking into Paradise."

Danbury is holding up her empty hands and asking if either or both of the two cities form associations can she recover the $250 forfeit each city defaulted to the little country town during the season of '87? This matter has never been settled, and the members of the Danbury organization think it would be no more than fair for the managers of the city clubs, who are prominent in the arrangements, to force the new organizations to pay up their just debts.

We are coing to have been shall been this season.

to force the new organizations to pay up their just debts.

We are going to have base bail here this season as sure as Hartford or New Haven does. This is the only town in Connecticut where it has paid in the past, and the hatters, who are great lovers of athletics, demand it. There is no league we can join, for Bridgeport, Ansonia, Waterbury and Meriden are dead to the fever this year. To be sure we could get into the Hudson River League, but this is out of the Hudson River League, but this is out of the way and very Inconvenient. We will form our club, however, and wait for something to turn up. If necessary we will organize an independent association and play exhibition games with league clubs.

PHILADELPHIA. Feb. 12.—A movement has taken shape in this city for the organization of an Eastern Amateur League. State Senator John E. Reyburn, who is the President of the Cape May Club, is at the head of the scheme, and he has already had correspondence with a number of clubs. A meeting will be held at an early day either in this city or New York. The new league is to be composed of six clubs: Cape May. Wynnewood, Highlands of Manayunk, Riverton, Bergen Point, and Staten Island. Senator Reyburn is now awaiting replies from the two last-named clubs. President A. J. Heach of the Philadelphia Club left town rather suddenly to-day. There has been a great deal of correspondence going on lately between the League magnates in regard to Ward's case, and from a reliable source it is learned that the League has determined that Ward shall go to no other club but Washington in ease he leaves New York. It is surmised that President Reach has gone to Boston to acquaint Soden of this decision. Soden of this decision. BASE BALL NOTES.

Ha strong, Feb. 12.—A meeting was held in this city to-night for the purpose of organizing a base ball club to enter the new Atlantic Beague. The meeting was a grand success, and it is now sure that this city will be in the new League. The capital stock of the new club is $5,900.

DES MOINES. Feb. 12.—Manager Hart has signed four new men for the Des Moines team. They are Hart, formerly of Cincinnati; Alexander, formerly of Mobile and Binghamton, N. Y. and Emmerke, a semi-professional of Louisville, and Patton of last year's St. Paul team. This makes eight men now under contract.

The New Jersey Athletic Club's nine have arranged to play the Yule College team at liergen Point, April 30, and the Princeton nine on April 13. Games are being arranged with Harvard, Williams, Columbia, and other teams for early in the season. Managers of the strongestamateur clubs, as well as professional nines, may secure dates by addressing Samuel J. Mack, Manager, Bergen Point, N. J.

The Indianapolis Club will probably play the Louisvilles April 3, 4, 5, 15, and 16, Mr. Davidson wired President Brush to that effect, and he will very likely accent the terms. The games will be divided and three played in Indianapolis. The other dates made by the Indianapolis Club are as foliows: April 6 and 7, Milwaukee; s and 9, Toronto; 10 and 11, Pittsburgh; 12 and 13, Cleveland.

The Brooklyn "L" Base Ball Club have reourgn; 12 and 13, Cleveland.

The Brooklyn "L" Base Ball Club have reorganized for the season with a stronger team than formerly. They have enclosed grounds, and are under a new management. They are open for engagements with all first-class clubs, especially the Orchards, Senators, Flushing, Aemes of New York, Rahway Athletics, Perth Amboy Athletics, and Sumners of Brooklyn, Sunday games preferred. Address Robert F. Teed, Van Sielen avenue station, Brooklyn.

PRILAPLIPHIA, Feb. 12—Manager Sharsig.

Teed, Van Sielen avenue station, Brooklyn.
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Manager Sharsig has decided to play the New Yorks two games at Gloucester because the Philadelphia management refuses to allow the games to be played in this city. "I would not do this if Mr. jeach had not agreed to our playing the New Yorks bere and then backed out," said he. "We can play the New Yorks fore an then backed out," said he. "We can play the New Yorks at Gloucester without interference by the Longue, as that city is beyond the distance which prevents members of the national agreement playing other clubs than those which are members of the same organization. I have written to Manager Mutric.

The Monmouth Park Association Does Not

Yet Own the Castler Farms. LONG BRANCH, Feb. 12 .- The report of the or chase of the two Castler farms, near Long Branch, by the Monmouth Park Association, for the proposed newracing tracks, was prema-ture. The owners of the two farms have agreed for the proposed new racing tracks, was present ture. The owners of the two farms have agreed to sell their 450 acres, but the Monmouth Park Association does not want them, and will not consummate the bargain unless a certain public road is vacated. This road is about a mile long and runs through both farms, crossing the sites of the proposed raco tracks and the grand stand. The only way to have the road vacated is through proceedings in the Monmouth County Court. The Monmouth Park Association has applied for a hearing on a petition asking the court to vacate the road. The road was dedicated to the public by the Castler brothers about twenty years ago. It is not an important thoroughiars, and its vacation, it is said, would not be a damage to residents of the county. A PILOT FISH TO A SHARK.

He Didn't Urge Objections to Mrs. Stewart's

JUDGE SMITH'S SIMILE FOR HILTON'S RELATIONS TO MR. STEWART.

Transfer to Judge Hilton, Because He Thought Hilton Might Square Accounts. Judge Smith was well enough to appear in ourt and submit to a continuance of ex-Surrogate Rollins's cross-examination when the Stewart will case was resumed yesterday. He brought with him all his diaries since 1876, except that for 1884, which he said he couldn't find. Only one of the diaries, he asserted, contained any entry referring to the Stewart es tate, and this entry was a memorandum of a deed from Henry Hilton to Sarah N. Smith. The fresh diaries thus apparently containing nothing to question Judge Smith about, Mr. Rollins had to fall back on the old one. Referring to the entry in that diary for June 12, which et forth that when Judge Smith asked her if she knew she had conveyed the Tenth street store to Judge Hilton, Mrs. Stewart answered that Judge Hilton had told her he was paying rent for it, Mr. Rollins got Judge Smith to acknowledge that the books of the estate, which he subsequently examined, showed Mrs. Stewart to be right.

"She took an intelligent interest in what you talked about at the interview on June 12—that is, not only in regard to the Tenth street store, out also in regard to the other matters relating to the estate?" pursued Mr. Rollins,

"Yes," was Judge Smith's answer. And she did not display irritation at your Nking about her affairs?" Well, I fancied from what took place after-way that she did display a little, although I searcly noticed it at the time. I attributed it to thenature of the conversation." "Are you exceedingly good tempered, Judge Smith?

"No: Tam rather quick tempered."
"You wit perhaps confess, too, to being in a state of suspicion and jealousy when you entered on thatconversation?" "Not of jeabusy."

"Wasn't she annoyed, and didn't she have cause for annotance at your manner, apart from the businest you spoke about?" her of the Tenth staet store being convoyed to Judge Hilton, but not at me."

" Her indignation, ten, seemed to be due to the fact that anybody should east imputations on Judge Hilton, as you had implied?" Yes."

Tres. These. The state of the relations the witness said that he nover saw Mrs. Stewart "so spunky" as when he teld her Dr. Marey and Judge Hilton had put their heads together to get her out of the way, after hearing of her proposed trin to Europe by the hector's advice. He had no basis, he asknowledged, for such an assertion. Although Mrs. Stewart showed great interest is what he communicated, and, when he said he was only telling her facts with the intention of doing her good. cated, and, when he said he was only telling her facts with the intention of doing her good, told him it was his duty to tell her them, the witness was not sufficiently encouraged by her reception of them to follow them up. He was probably influenced by the interession he had that she did not want any one to interfere between her and Judge Hilton.

"What put such a thought in your mital?"

The witness couldn't tell, unless it was her manner when he spoke of Judge Hilton.

"Did you intimate to her at any time that Judge Hilton was not a man of interrity?"

"No: I conveyed no such impression."

"No: I conveyed no such impression."
But your manner indicated that you were suspicious of him?"
"My impression is that she thought I had suspicions."
"But you gave her no cause?"

"Can you remember anything she said which

No.

Seeaking of the impression which Mrs. Stew art might have gathered, and probably did gather, from the newspapers, which he presumed she read, as she subscribed to them all, as to what the public thought of her transactions with Judge Hilton, Judge Smith summed up the situation at that time as follows:

"The general idea of the public was that a very great business man had done a very foolish thing in leaving the property as he did, as it had enabled Judge Hilton to get possession of it by taking advantage of Mrs. Stewart, One headline in a newspaper was "Twenty Million for One."

"After some other questions, Mr. Rollins asked: "You knew that in 1882 the business was wound up, and that, consequently, Judge Hilton's 'trust' had ceased; at any rate, that the time had come for an accounting of this business, Was it not, therefore, natural to ask Mrs. Stowart if he had so accounted?"

"Perhaps so, but I didn't do it,"

"When did you first learn that Judge Hilton had made no return to Mrs. Stewart of the proceeds from the business."

"When I examined the books after her death."

"In the course of your testimony you have Speaking of the impression which Mrs. Stew

Then you cidn't think she was under an 'Insane delusion?"

I thought she was under a delusion, but not an insane one."

Mr. Rollins now asked: "Now, bearing in mind what occurred between you and Mrs. Stewart on the first occasion after her important that the stewart on the first occasion after her insane and searing in mind what took place on June 12 and June 13, when you visited her again; bearing in mind your wife's interest and your subsequent conduct from June 13 on, during the whole of Mrs. Stewart's life—tell me if you can reconcile all that with any other theory than this. That you knew of the transaction to Judge Hilton; knew that it was absolute on its face; knew that it would be treated both by Mrs. Stewart and Judge Hilton as absolute, and deliberately concluded to postpone until after her death the raising of any question about its validity or effect because of your fear and expectation that your interference in the matter would be likely to result in sustaining the conveyance to Judge Hilton rather than in overthrowing it, and that you might possibly succeed when she ceased to live in obtaining what you could never have hered to obtain in nor lifetime?

"It would take two Philadelphia lawyers to answer that question," said Judge Smith, When the stemogramher had repeated the question, with much gasning for breath, he reclied: "I never had those things in contemplation before or since. I was content with leaving things as they were. I never contemplated this proceeding and never had any part in it. At one time, too, I had some reason to believe that Judge Hilton would faithfully account for all the property in the end. I never connected with the Stewart estate; he had always kept one. On redirect examination by Mr. Choate.

On redirect examination between Judge Hilton would account for the Stewart property was that Mrs. Stewart and between Jud Judge Hilton, as regarded Mr. Stewart, was "Judge Hilton, as regarded Mr. Stewart, was like a pilot lish to a shark—not that I mean to call Judge Hilton a pilot lish or Mr. Stewart a shark. I merely wish to indicate the relations they beer to each other."

In indicating the extent to which Judge Hilton made himself "master" in the Stewart house at the time of Mr. Stewart's funeral, Judge Smith said he practically put Dr. Haight, who, with Arthur Leary, was to have sat up with Mr. Stewart's body, out of the house, although members of the family wished the Doctor to stay. tor to stay.

The case will be continued to-day.

One of Them Dies While Locked Up False Charges in Aspinwall. AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 12 .- A story came to light to-day of the persecution visited upon two American physicians at Aspinwall, which ended in the death of Dr. H. J. Purdy of Seneca Falls. Dr. Purdy prescribed medicine for a patient in Panama, who died in two hours, and the authorities arrested Dr. Purdy and his partner, Dr. Charles H. Utter, a former Auburn man. Dr. Purdy, while in prison, was taken ill and died. Under date of Jan. 9 Dr. Utter wrote a long letter to Dr. Lewis of this city, in which he said :

On Oct. 11 three men were brought to our office, all suffering from syphilitic rheumatism and blood poisoning. Dr. Purdy examined and blood poisoning. Dr. Purdy examined them, gave them all the same kind of treatment, and they went away. On the morning of the 14th we were both arrested and taken before the Alcade. When I asked why I was detained he said there were charges preferred against us for poisoning a man. I saw a bottle of medicine on the Alcade's desk, and they said the medicine was poison, and asked me what I knew about it. I told them what was in the medicine and drank a little of It. After they had taken my evidence they put Dr. Purdy and myself in a room together, where we were locked up. The Doctor's evidence was the same as my own, and he drank a portion of the medicine also. That satisfied the Alcade that there was no polson in the medicine, but they did not let us go.

"The next day they dug up the dead man and took his stomach, liver, and kidneys to the Government chemist, together with the medicine. Was a little folia poitasis, which the doctor swore he put up for the man. Then they said they did not know how much iodia potassai took to kill a man, and I sent to my offles and got Van Buren as an authority, and showed him where a man had taken 950 grains in twenty-four hours and no death occurred, whereas the patient was taking only about

The letter goes on to say that Dr. Purdy came down with yellow fever in prison. He suffered there for five days, when he was taken to the hospital, where he died. Utter says he has as yet had no trial.

George F. Lilly.

In his report Superintendent Murray says that in spite of the hard work of the strike and the detail at times of 1.700 policemen to the horse-car routes, the arrangements were such that there was no marked increase to the sick list, and no increase of ordinary crimes. He says that the companies were assured from the start of protection for as many cars as they could man. He praises the four inspectors for their good generalship in maintaining order with a minimum of bloodshed, the detective force for discovering the plans of the strikers in advance and for their fighting qualities too, and Superintendent Crowley of the Telegraph Department for making the best of the limited facilities of the department. Besides the immediate increase of the force to at least 4.000 patrolmen, which the growth of the city demands and the riots indicate the wisdom of asking from the Legislature, he calls for more patrel wagons and the best obtainable signal system. Ability to mass forces speedily counts for much in times of riot, and enables the police to nip disorder in the bud, while detailing officers on messenter service weakens the fighting force. He concludes by saying:

I take special pleasure in commending the action on this occasion of disorder of the Captains and other officers of the department, and of the whole body of the police force, and to express snew my confidence in their patrices for the department, and courage. The object of the fair is to provide for the cost of new loss and a new building, which has just been completed at a cost of about $2.000. The expenses of the institution during the past few years have so increased that it is necessary to raise $22.000 annually in addition to the ordinary revenues. During the year 7, 145 patients received granuitions treatment making a total of 549.200 since 1856. In 1868 the intuber of visits was $7,507, and the number of prescriptions issued $0.704.

Business men don't often stop in the mob on Broadway to look at a shop window, but they did yesterday when they got to Spring street and saw behind a collars and cutfs as was probably never made before in this town. There is a cylinder of linen rising in the middle of the window, to show the material that the cidars and cutfs are made from. Flanking it on each rise, half its small boxes and ball without, are hundreds and hundreds of collars of all styles and shades. The boxes are piled far back into the window in tiers and rows, and the whole arrangement is unique, considering that collars and cutfs are not the easiest thing in the world with which to dress a window.

The New Jersey Club, one of the oldest and wealthiest social organizations in Jersey City, held a meeting yesterday and decided to buy the three-story brewn-sions house in Grand street which has been used as the club house for fifteen years. bribes were only offered them, and to report the facts to the House. It is not probable that the committee will report that they were bribed.

The matter was brought up when Mr. Sheehan, rising to a question of privilege, said that the reports in the papers that $45,000 had been offered a member of the Appropriations Committee to go, with five other members of the Appropriations Committee to go, with five other members of the Appropriations Committee, and make a majority to whitewash the Ceiling Committee were a reflection on the members of the Ceiling Committee. He, suggested that after passing a vote of confidence in the Appropriations Committee should ask to the discharged from the whole subject matter, and the investigation of the ceiling should be undertaken by a special committee.

Mr. Gallup of Syracuse said: "As another member of the Ceiling Committee I think, before any action is taken, that the person to whom this bribe was offered should arise in his place and say who offered should arise in his place and say who offered should arise in his place and say who offered should arise in his place and say who offered the bribe.

Mr. Gallup voted against the letting of the contract, and is the only member of the committee who did.

Major-Gen. Husted tried to turn the whole matter into a joke and laugh the Assembly into a postponement. He said that the question to be considered was whether or not the work had been done according to the contract, and he thought the Committee on Appropriations were capable of finding that out. If the Committee on Appropriations had to have a committee to investigating the contract was investigating the Ceiling Committee. He was opposed to the Assembly playing the game of "This is the house that Jack built."

"So far we have had rumors and no names, said Mr. Saxton. "The member must rise."

playing the game of "This is the house that Jack built."

So far we have had rumors and no names, said Mr. Saxton. "The member must rise."

No names had been mentioned, but overy one knew that it was Mr. Martin who was meant. He had been elitting at his desk writing letters, and naring his nails with a penknife. At last he said:

"I presume without the mention of any name in the articles in the daily press that I am regarded in this matter as the central figure. Taking the publications in their entirety. I nm free to say that a few days ago I received a note in New York requesting me to call at a certain place to see a gentieman. I called at the place tand the signer of the note, unknown to me, was there. A conversation occurred in reference to this matter, and I am free to say that the gentleman said that it would be to my advantage to consuit him further in reference to the Investigation. That is about the sum and substance of the matter."

"I would like to ask a question," said Mr.

of the matter."
"I would like to ask a question." said Mr. Aspinall. "Was the person who made that request a member of this body?"
"No, sir." replied Mr. Martin.
"Then," continued Mr. Aspinall. "I ask that the gentleunan from New York give us the man's name."

tee who were all right for whitewashing the Celling Committee, and you were desired as the sixth. Is that so?"

"There was no such statement made," replied Mr. Martin.

"How about the statement that it would be worth $5,000 if you voted a particular way?" inquired with Mr. Dunlap with rural curiosity.

"That is not true as to the amount," replied Mr. Martin.

Mr. Aarlawalt sold."

"How about the statement that it would be worth $5,000 if you voted a particular way?" inquired with Mr. Dunlap with rural curiosity. "That is not true as to the amount." replied Mr. Martin.

Mr. Aspinwall said: "This is a surprising statement from the gentleman from New York, who deliberately rises in his place and makes the statement that a certain gentleman approached him and said to him: "If you do so and so it will be to your advantage; if you whitewash the members of this committee it will be to your advantage; if you whitewash the members of this committee it will be to your advantage, and the gentleman from New York says the man didn't say in what respect it would be to his advantage. It presume, though, he meant pecuniary advantage, and then upon the floor of the Assembly of the State of New York seals his ilps and refuses to give the name of this man who then and there attempted a crime against the Legislature of the State of New York. I say it is the duty of the gentleman from New York to give the name of this man and not divulge it in a secret session of the Appropriations Committee. If the man had come to me and made such a statement as that I would not have waited until the whip held by some gentleman in this House snapped and struck me in the face before it brought me to my feet. I have refrained from saying anything in this matter because when I talked on the ceiling question last it was said in the press of my city that I had a grievance because I was not placed on certain committees. I wish to say to the 128 members of this House for a few moments of the subsequence of the state has been not bed of $175,000, and I am in this thing and propose to stay if I am the only man out of the 128." The Speaker then made this statement. "I ask the indulgence of the House, for me on the retard this investigation on the theory that some parties in this House, from motives of personal privilege. TRIED TO BRIBE MR. MARTIN.

THE ASSEMBLYMAN FROM THE NINTH ASKED "TO ELONGRATE THE SPEAKER"

Won't Tell, Though, Who Suggested How he Might Turn his Voic in the Celling Investigation to Account—The Appropriations Committee to Investigate Itself—A Lively Bebate in the Assembly.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Mr. John Martin, Assemblyman from the Ninth New York district, told the Assembly this morning that money had been offered him for his influence in the Appropriations Committee; or, as he put it; "I was told it would be for my advantage, probably my financial advantage, to adopt a certain course of action." He said that these overtures were made to him by a man who told him that the people who were insisting on an investigation of the ceiling were "going for Cole's scalp, and that it was not right that it should be so when other people were involved."

It was the most exciting session that the Assembly bas had in years. There were direct charges of bribery on every side. Mr. Aspinall said that the State had been robbed of $177,000. Mr. Shechan charged that Mr. Ainsworth said that the State had been robbed of $177,000. Mr. Shechan charged that Mr. Ainsworth said that the State had been robbed of $177,000. Mr. Shechan charged that Mr. Ainsworth was intentional, and made charges against other Assemblymen. The Assemblymen jumped up and down as if they were in frying pans. The singular thing about the whole matter is that nothing resulted from it, and the end of the two hours' debato was the reference of the whole matter is that nothing resulted from it, and the end of the two hours' debato was the reference of the whole matter to the Committee and pour the worth was the reference of the whole matter to the Committee and should have reported and failed to do so. and then whon a charge of the minority of the state had been robbed of the committee of the whole matter to the committee will will be welcame; had been robbed of the committee will make the committee will be welcame; had been robbed of the committee will be welcame; h

"What he means by his statement, protest too much?"

Mr. Ainsworth replied that the man who was a member of a committee which should have a member of a committee which should have reported and failed to do so, and then whon a committee of investigation was appointed and he kent elamoring for an immediate report, it appeared to him that man was protesting too much. "The man," he continued, "who runs through a crowd crying loudest. 'Stop thief! is usually the man arrested. I don't mean to insinuate that the member has been guilty of wrong doing. I know he is an honest man, but his pailid complexion inflientes a thin skin. His anxiety to holler investigation indicates that morally he is of the same character."

White with rage and indignation. Mr. Sheehan replied: Every man who attempts to stop this investigation seems to be against the world with reference to like course on any public onestion. The gentleman from Oswego says I am thin skinned. Possibly I am, but in the language of the poor he quotes 'Conscience makes cowards of us all.' I am not a coward, because I do not fear the fullest investigation. The Chairman of the Appropriations Committee is not thin skinned else he would rise and demand his committee be discharged from further consideration of the same story as that the New York is substantially the same story as that the New York is substantially the same story as that the New York papers printed, that a man, a noted member of the lobby, approached him and said it would be of financial benefit to him to pursue a certain course, to wit: whitewash the whole subsect. Is this House going to sit idly by and not investigation instead of swearing witnesses connected with the construction of the Assembly ceiling? As far as I am concerned, my character after this investigation with remain as it is now, honorable and pure as a public official."

After some more talk it was voted to instruct the members of the Appropriations Committee to decide whether they had to report the matter to the Assembly, and to urge th

Report of the Committee of the Ladien

The Ladles' Health Protective Association of this city met yesterday afternoon at 32 West Twenty-sixth street. Reports on garbage cremation, stable refuse, and gas houses were presented. Miss Thomas, in the report of the Committee on School Hygiene, said that in School No. 28. Fortieth street, near Eighth avenue, which the committee visited last Friday, some of the rooms were crowded to their utmost capacity, the children even being obliged to sit on benches under the blackboards. Most of the children felt ill in the afternoons. The dirt the committee laid to the negligence of the innitor, but the bad ventilation and odors were the fault of the trustees. In one class twenty children had weak eyes, and forty had knit brows, indicating headache. Their eyes became blurred and they complained of feeling dizzy. The teachers said that the headaches came usually in the afternoon. In a class of fifty-eight, thirty were subject to headache and thirteen had weak eyes. In one class seven had curvature of the spine, and in a class of sixty-saven boys there was only one that did not have a sunken chest or shoulder blades out of position. Committee on School Hygiene, said that in
